Unbeaten Teams Abound At Halfway Point of this Year's Tournament Close Races In Several Divisions Make The Runs Allowed Category Very Important

By Joel Becker

While it's nice to see such good ball in this year's pool play, the pressure is certainly mounting heading into today's games, as an amazingly high percentage of teams still have a shot at a playoff berth. A total of 18 teams remain unbeaten heading into today, and over 85% of all teams are still in the running to qualify for the playoffs. With all these teams still alive, the "runs allowed" category has gained further importance to the rest of pool play, possibly making the difference between a weekend of playoffs or a weekend of golf.

Teams that finish tied after pool play of course go to a tie breaker to determine their standings. The first tie breaker is head-to-head play, but the second is runs allowed. Moreover, all potential wild card teams with the same record are sorted by least runs allowed. That makes is of paramount importance that team managers verify that their runs allowed stat (as posted in the Daily News and on Scorebook.com) is correct.

Also, teams that are playing in "participation" divisions need to be sure the correct number of players are getting at least one at-bat per game. Only players who participate in pool play games can play during the playoffs and championship.
