New Tempe Diablo Complex A Hit With The MSBL Teams!

48+ Federal Fog City 50's batter Larry Hendrickson crushes this ball into left field during yesterday's 13-7 win over the Bakersfield Outlaws in a game at Tempe Diablo Stadium.

Divisional Races Remain Competitive Midway Through Pool Play Round

58+ American Division Playoff Change In The Works For Friday

By Tom Prendergast

After the first three weeks of the 2006 MSBL / MABL World Series, one thing is clear, the players participating in this years tournament are in complete agreement, the new fields at the Tempe Diablo Complex are top notch. Spacious outfields, plenty of room to warm up on the sidelines and a batter's eye on each field.

At the halfway point of week three most of the divisions seem fairly evenly matched when you look at the records. The outcome of today's games will be important for teams that are hoping to advance to the playoff round. This year the team manager will receive a call on Thursday night, once the WS office has finalized the playoff pairings for each division. In addition the playoff teams will be posted on scorebook.com and the national msbl website.

The World Series staff is contemplating making a change to the 58+ American playoffs. Originally the top eight teams were going to qualify for the American playoffs. After the first two days of pool play, it appears that a disparity occurs between the top six teams and the rest of the division. So it would seem reasonable to add a National Division for the top four teams and allow the next four teams to compete in the American playoffs. The benefit to the teams is that two sets of championship prizes would be awarded.
