MSBL / MABL World Series Spotlight on Mike Alcala (LA Matanzas)

Winning a World Series championship can erase the painful memories of finishing so close, but not achieving your goal. The 2010 version of Matanzas

(California) 35+ Mountain team celebrated mid-day at Tempe Diablo Stadium and now can forget their eleven inning, one run loss in the finals last year. Mike Alcala has been leading his team for ten years, since joining the Westside L.A. MSBL in 1999. Taking a break from his full time job at UCLA Medical Center, Mike and his family were especially pleased to celebrate their youngest son's fifth birthday (Dylan) on the field. It was hard to distinguish the pride of winning a major baseball event from the pride of a dad who had his family to share in his victory. Also present for team (continued on page 2)

35+ Central - Tempe Diablo Field 2, Nov. 6, 2010 - Vic Valdez threw a complete-game, and Wes Kroon doubled in the go-ahead run in the eighth inning as the Utah Black Sox slipped past the Des Moines Bruins 6-5 to grab the 35 Central title. By Jason Johnson, HardBall

MSBL / MABL World Series Spotlight on Rick Farney (Dodgertown West)

A Los Angeles attorney, Rick was attending the Dodgers fantasy camp in Vero Beach, Florida when he found out about the local MSBL league in his home town. He joined that league and became a team leader in 2000. Nine years of experience with a World Series entry, his Dodgertown West group has won a championship along with looking forward to the challenge every year in the Valley. Rick's family, wife Sharon, daughter Ariana (24) and son Rhett (22) enjoy supporting the MSBL version of the Dodgers. Rick views the responsibilities of managing his team as a pleasure rather than business. His most special moment was watching his teammates go wild in celebrating their first divisional championship.

photos were older son Justin (16) and wife Talia. Alcala was recruited by a friend to play in the league and soon became league scheduler. He now serves as league president and is highly regarded among those who he devotes 10-15 hours each week to lead. It was clear to all that the close-knit Matanzas group found relief, joy, and strengthened their bonds of friendship through the team's ultimate accomplishment, winning it all at the MSBL's premier event.
