New World Series Web Site Omits Ties / Runs Scored & Allowed

By Tom Prendergast

In an attempt to keep on offering up to date technology, the MSBL National Office has reached an agreement with a company that provides internet tournament software that allows the tournament staff to offer "real" time scoring updates. One of the most frequent request that the national office receives each year is, "can we get an app for the website?" This new company is going to provide an app that will satisfy that request.

However, in the meantime the current software does not show ties or runs allowed in the team standings box. You can see your record, complete with ties and runs scored and allowed, but you have to manually add your teams scores and all of your opponents scores to get totals. And since runs allowed is a tie-breaking category, it's pretty important. By Wednesday the Daily News will have the runs scored and allowed totals for each team.

109 Teams Make Up The Final Week Of The MSBL WS

Record Number Of Teams Participating In Week 3 Of The Tournament Expanded Courtesy Runner Rule Still Creating Some Confusion For Managers

By Tom Prendergast

Very few MSBL managers miss an opportunity to try and give their team an advantage. That's why it seems strange that there would be so much confusion surrounding the courtesy runner rule. Before the game, each team manager submits his lineup to the opposing manager and declares his two courtesy runners. In the 60+ divisions teams can use three, one id for the pitcher or catcher position. We don't have designated runners, instead the last batted out always takes the place for the player who has been designated to receive a courtesy runner. In the event that doesn't happen, it's not a protest able offense and as soon as the wrong runner is noticed, then the correct player should be inserted as the runner. On a more positive note, 109 teams began play yesterday, the largest number of week three teams we've ever had. In what's become one of the more popular handouts, this years red MSBL / MABL batting gloves are becoming something of a collector's item. And speaking of collector's items, the MVP Novelty Shop has a limited number of 2013 MSBL World Series patches. You should get those while they last.

60+ National LeHigh Valley Moondogs batter, Mike Zuk connects with this pitch for an rbi single against the Berry's on Monday.

45+ Cactus AZ / UT Rockies pitcher, Joe Sandoval delivers a pitch during his teams 8-7 win over Armstrong Slugging yesterday.

60+ National LeHigh Valley Moondogs batter, Rich Wesco takes a good look at this pitch, called a ball, that was low and a bit outside.

45+ Cactus Armstrong Slugging pitcher, Jansen Satterlee certainly got the batters attention with his "in your face" delivery motion.
