Current Government or State Photo ID's Are Required For All Players Verified Rosters Part of the Check In Procedure for This Years MSBL World Series

By Tom Prendergast

We have approximately 6000 players attending this years tournament. Chances are some of those players probably have similar last names of guys that played professional baseball. It doesn't take very long to do a Google search and see if any of the guys on the other team ever played pro ball. Sometimes the names match and when they do - a red flag goes up. So we require every manager to have a copy of a players ID. This way, if somebody questions the age or true identity of a player on their roster, they can quickly nip it in the bud. Probably the wrong thing to do is refusing to provide an ID. Who doesn't carry a driver's license around with them. OK, so Joliet "Jake" Blues didn't carry one, but he's an exception to the rule. And if he and his brother, Elwood ever showed up at our tournament, they would need one.
