Weather Issues Always Create Problems at the MSBL World Series

5 Inning Games Nothing New As Some Teams Play 4 Games In A Day!

By Tom Prendergast

Thursday's rain was hit and miss. Unfortunately for us the rain hit most of the fields we were playing on. Some complex ground crew's are more successful than others. It doesn't take a lot of moisture to make some of the fields we use unplayable. When this happens, the staff circles the wagons and contacts the complex supervisors at each facility that we are using to get an update on how quickly their fields will be playable. This week, a couple of the 18+ teams ended up playing 4 (5 inning games) in one day to get all their games in. This is not unprecedented and of course, it's happened before. In 1998, the Valley of the Sun saw several days of rain and we were left with 3 playable fields (at the Tempe Diablo complex) and 24 hours to play 60 plus games. We scheduled hour long games (round the clock) and managed to get in all of the games. This included semi-finals and championship games. Many players left the field and went directly to the airport and flew home in their baseball uniform. Teams that attend the MSBL WS tournament expect to play their games. Clearly any disruptions to games created by weather are problematic. Because the MSBL WS schedule is so involved and complicated, we use foam core boards to keep track of all the games. For everyday of the tournament we have a dedicated board, which shows the 47 fields that we use, separated by their location in the Valley. And every game is posted on the board, which shows the time, opponent, division and field location. In the event of a cancellation (continued on page 2)

we remove the game slip and set it off to the side so we can re-schedule it. All of the game slips are color coded, which indicate different divisions. As soon as we receive official confirmation from the field director's, we start putting the games back on the board, in their new day and time slot.

That's the easy part. Once all of the games have been re-scheduled we will post these to the website and call every manager. And of course we need to let the umpires know that their games have been re-scheduled as well. On occasion, like this past week - sometimes teams will need to play multiple games per day. Every game is important and it's our number one goal to get them all played.
