Standings On The Website Create Some Confusion / Angst On Playoff Nights!

The Official MSBL WS Standings Are Always Listed In The Newsletter
By Tom Prendergast

Baseball is a simple game. Throw the ball, hit the ball and catch the ball. The game was invented back in 1861, so how complicated can the rules be? Playing the game is easy, administering the game is a bit more complicated. The automated software on our website, allows us to post scores and get updated standings in real time. But it doesn't always sort the team standings based on our tie-breakers. Head to head competition is first, followed by runs allowed and then runs scored. However, if team A beats team B and then team B beats C and C beats A - well that's a wash. Or in the case of inter division play, when a team from a lower division is playing a team from a higher division, that team receives a point in the standings. The software on line doesn't allow us to do that, but the standings in the newsletter do allow it. And then there's the wildcard, which is a big part of our playoff seeding. In our larger divisions the top 12 teams will advance to the playoffs. Wildcard rankings are based strictly on runs allowed. Even if your team is from the same division, and had a better record (but gave up more runs), the team with fewer runs allowed will be the higher seed. That's why it's so important to keep track of runs allowed!

F/S Cactus So Cal Gamecocks batter, Matthew Green turns on an inside pitch and drove in a couple rbi's in his teams game at Tempe Diablo.

After the Aussie Aces vs Seattle Mariners Father / Son game last night at Tempe Diablo Stadium, MSBL WS umpire, Reece Chiasson surprised girl friend, Kyleigh Christensen with a (highly choreographed) marriage proposal, and she said - "YES". Congrats!

F/S Central Division Charros batter, Brandon Mannion reaches out and drives this ball into right field during yesterdays game.

F/S Central Division: Rhode Island Red Sox third baseman Nick Coro chases down John Volkers from the Terre Haute Volkers.

F/S Cactus Division Charros batter, Isaac Parra gets a really good look at this pitch and sends it back up the middle for a base hit.

F/S Cactus Division: Sacramento Cannons batter Skye Ropke waits back to drive a fastball to the right side against the Gamecocks.
